SIXTH FORM

"we can only try to become total men"

In his salutatory speech, at Commencement, Stavros Aridjides summarized the aim of our class, the Class of 1968, as we move beyond Anatolia College: "We do not promise," he said, "to become supermen; we can only try to become total men, natural men." As our aim for the future, this goal is the natural extension of an idea that has directed our sixth form year at Anatolia, a year full of diverse activities and happenings. Most important and imperative, of course, have been our classes and studies. But in our striving to become total men, we needed more to complete our student life. And so, there were picnics, assemblies, athletic events, clubs and extracurricular activities, parties, those valuable hours when we simply talked and played, and our excursion to Corfu.

"a healthy mind in a healthy body"

The ancient Greeks believed that the ideal education developed a health mind in a healthy body. The intense academic concentration required of us during the year to develop our minds, shown by L. Manou (LEFT), was tempered with relaxation in sports. ABOVE: Miss Reno gives A. Callinderi last minute coaching. CENTER: Benveniste plays goalie. BELOW: The sixth form softball team presents a formidable outfield.

"a time to work and a time to play"

In our education as total men there was a time to work and a time to play. LEFT: L. Manou, D. Demakopoulou, and P. Tsinari insist at Mountain Day that they have found Ibsen's Triangle. RIGHT: M. Coen concentrates in English class. "He thinks too much; such men are dangerous." Julius Caesar. OPPOSITE PAGE LEFT: E. Tsakirides and T. Antoniadis give full, passionate attention in chorale practice. RIGHT: O. Vouloni struggles to solve SAT problems successfully. BELOW: The softball team takes time out to debate new strategy.

"the well-rounded student life,"

The well-rounded student life we tried to achieve had its hours of class work and preparations, but it also had soccer games against the teachers, class unity and spirit as we cheered our friends' efforts, and assemblies where we learned and were entertained informally.

A. Solov'yev's

"rare moments of free time"

In those rare moments of free time, we worked for the Bazaar, shared ideas, created artistic works, and thoroughly enjoyed ourselves at class parties.

"Stone walls do not a prison make,
nor iron bars a cage."

The history of our long-awaited class excursions can be told in a few words:

Crazy
Outstanding
Relaxing
Fantastic
Unusual

April 22-26, 1968

We studied; we worked;
we came to know our teachers,
our classmates,
ourselves more fully; we played. In all, we moved toward becoming total
men, natural men.

Valedictorian
Angeliki Alvanou
Salutatorian

Commencement June 5, 1968

As we leave these College halls, let us give a solemn promise:

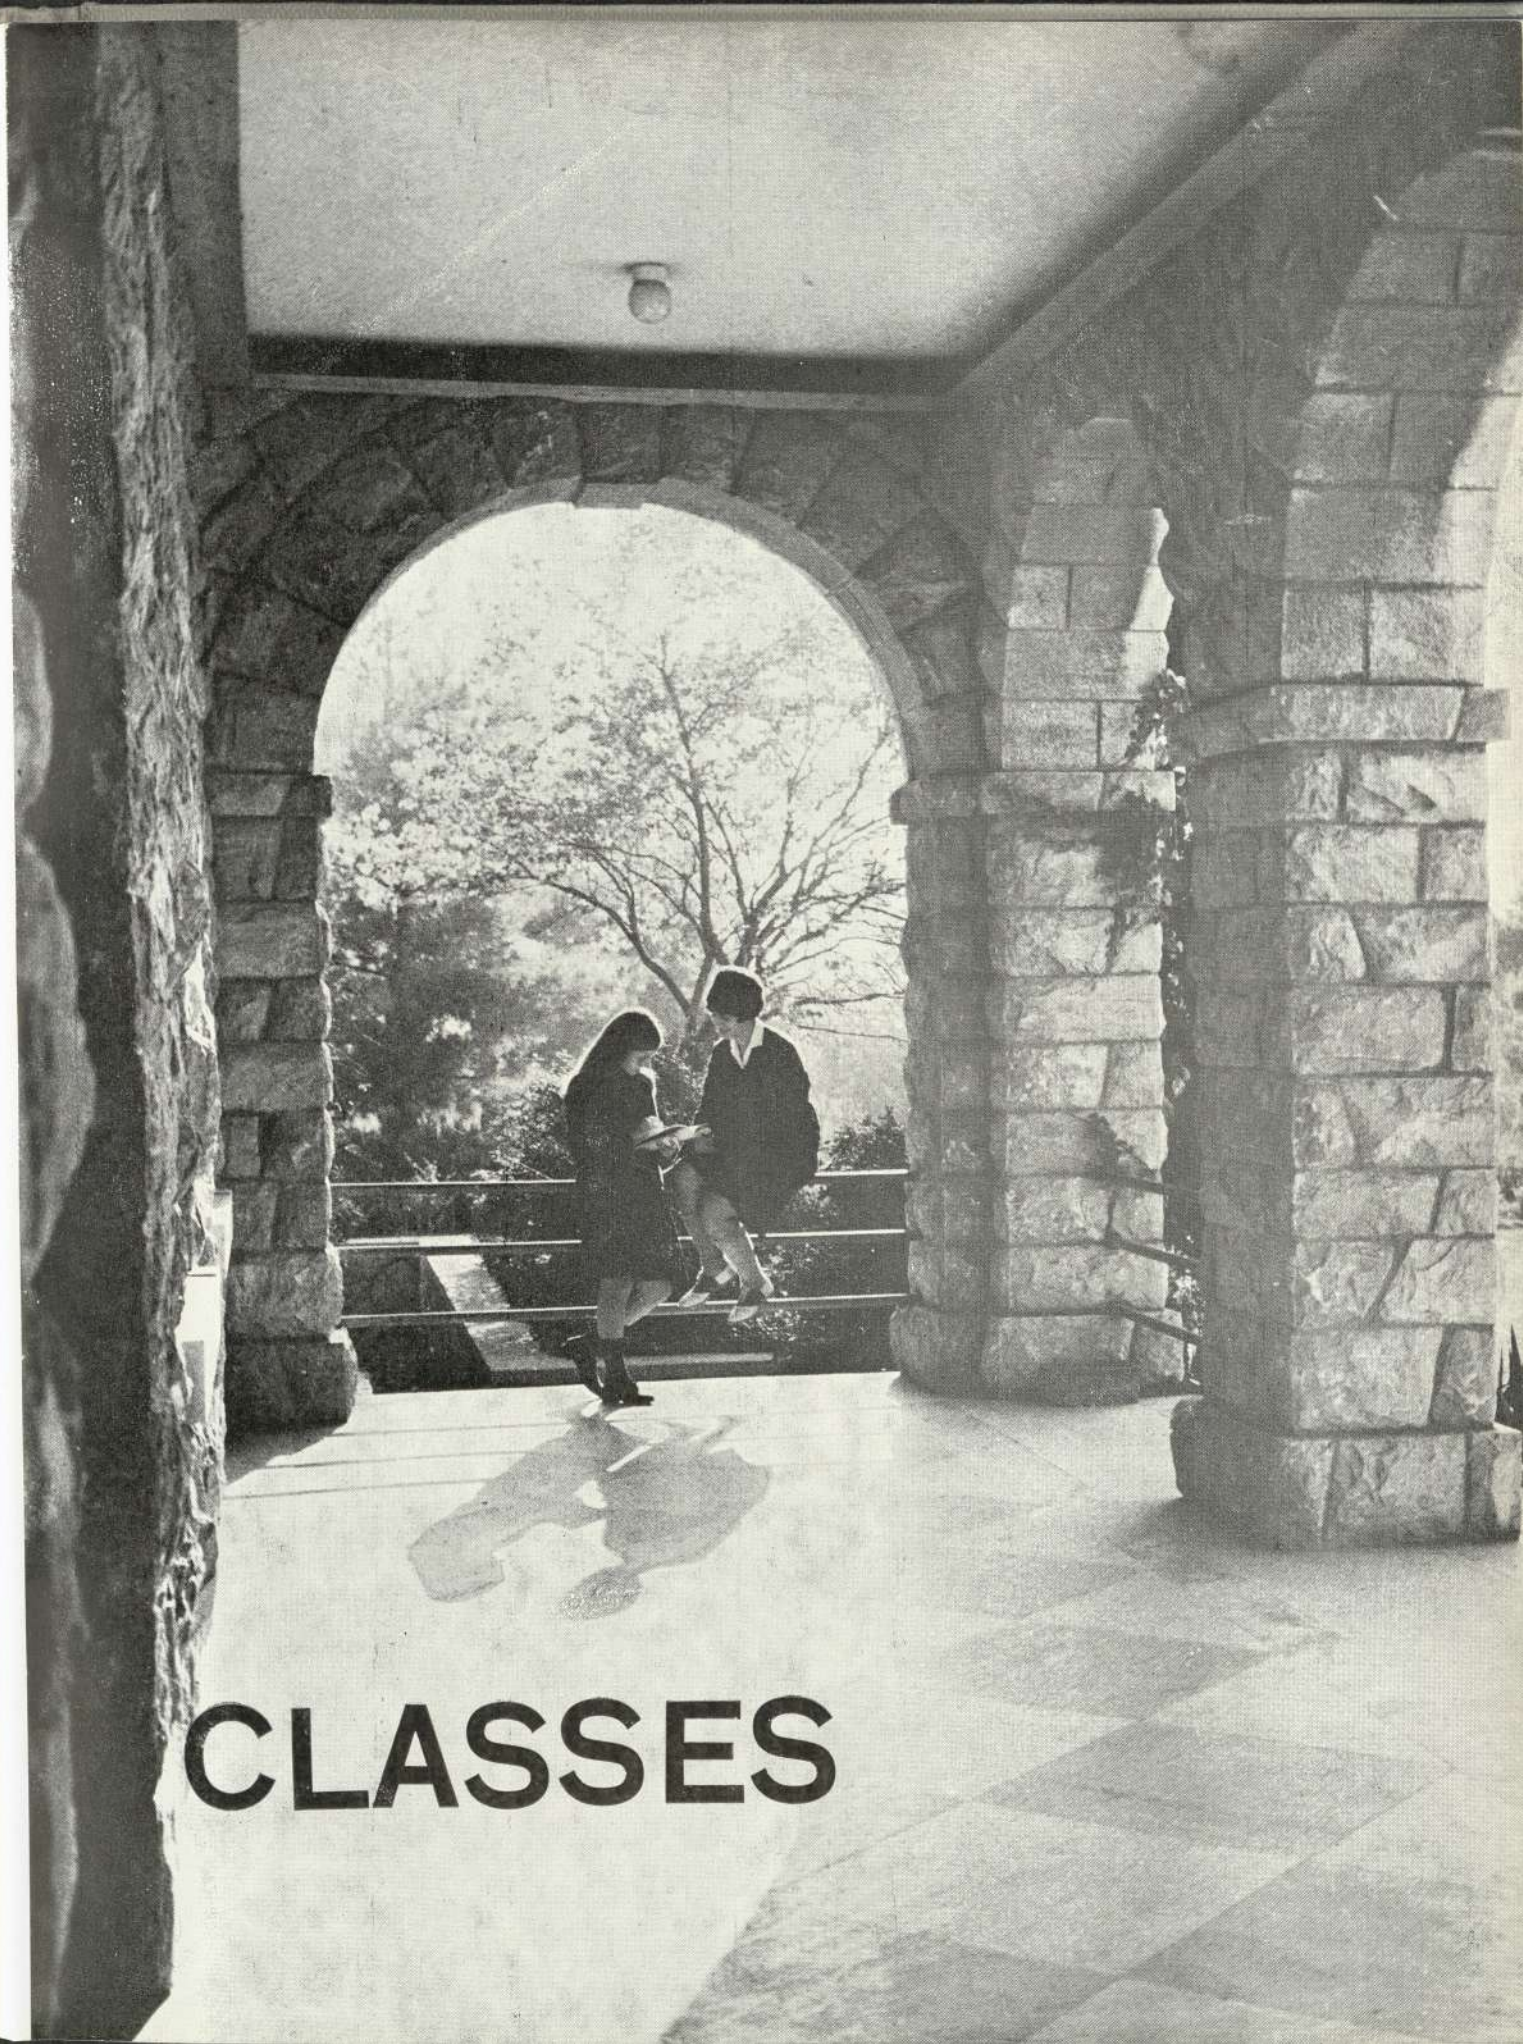

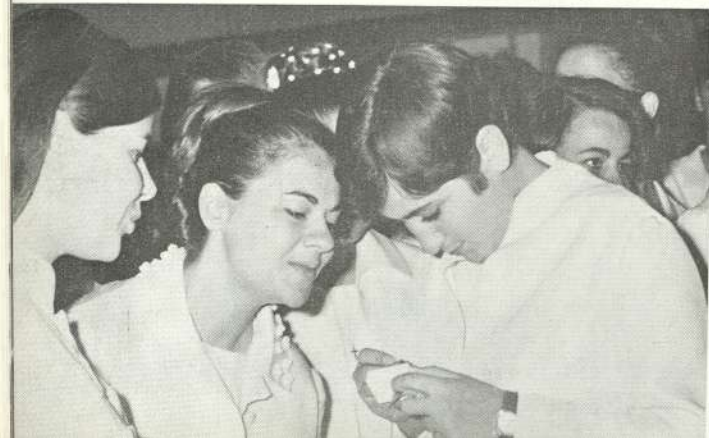

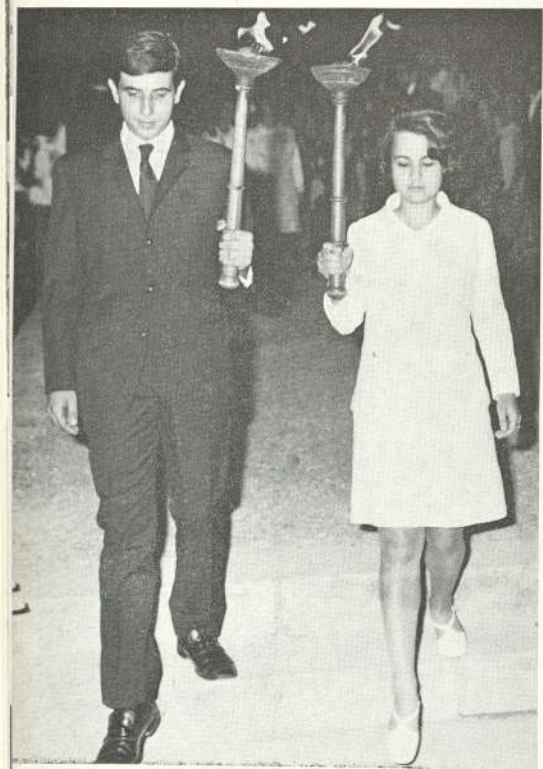

In loyalty to the ideals of my Alma Mater, the hopes of my parents, and the needs of my country, I pledge myself.

Wherever I go, whatever I do, I will make the guiding light of my life not fame, nor wealth, nor power, but the love of God and the love of my fellow man.

I will live not for myself alone; but for the good of my community, my country, and the whole brotherhood of man.

Life for boarders has another dimension than that of day students; Anatolia College is not only classroom hours but it is also "home" for the academic year. Every day begins with the inevitable waking bell; there are afterschool snacks, crazy antics, and recreation before quiet study hours; and because of the closeness of group living, there are endless discussions with room-mates and friends. On weekends the Boys' and Girls' Boarding Departments meet for movies or dancing and the memorable Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Carnival parties.

Ask any TWA hostess—on any flight—West to California, East to Hong Kong—what our new slogan means. She'll tell you it refers to us... TWA. And to you... our passengers.

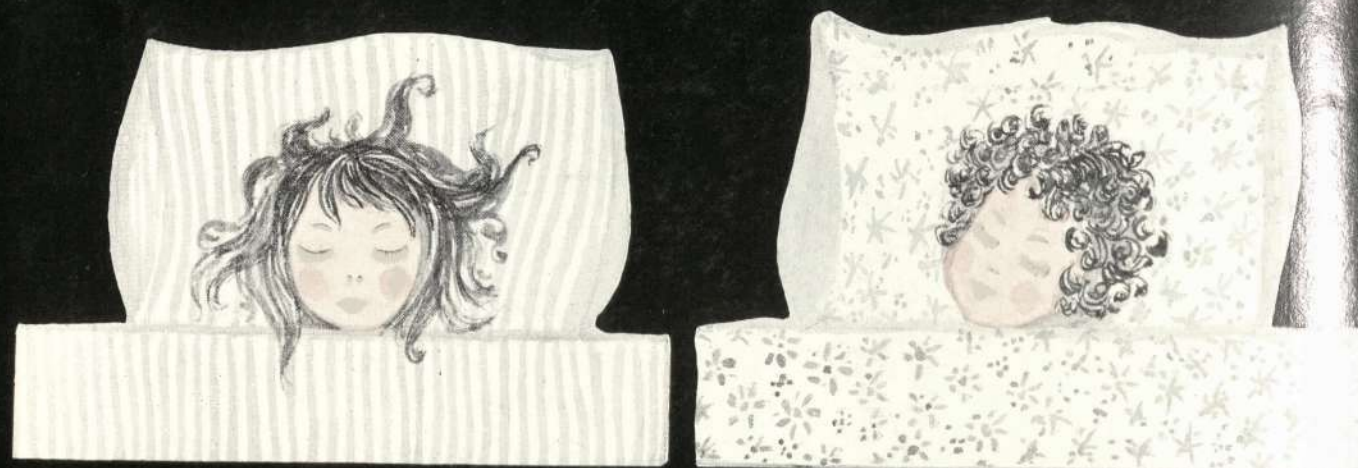

It says that TWA is the lively, look-ahead airline with its eye on the sky. That we're the modern, contemporary, swinging one. That we're 'way up front in a bright new world.

And it says we're the airline geared for people like you. Go go go people. Folks who fly for business, and pleasure, and fly TWA for both. Young-in-heart people, businessmen (and women), vacationers, anybody and everybody who's geared for 1968 and wants to fly...
